PARISH STYLE

PARISH is located in the heart of Inman Park in historical Terminal Building built in 1890.

The only remaining structure from an old pipe factory building had been abandoned for some time. With respect to the building's fundamental spirit, Concentrics' Bob Amick and Todd Rushing have restored the building to its original grandeur allowing patrons to relish the antiquated structure as they take in the organically funky vibe found throughout PARISH. The space features fully-restored crown moldings, antique Parisian sconces, red murano chandeliers, vaulted interior brick arches, a walnut and zinc bar, the original tin ceiling, refurbished windows, original exposed brick, a classic raw bar and a Vermont slate roof. A spacious outdoor dining area offers patrons an alfresco escape. Each aspect of PARISH will exude the same comfortable casualness associated with the laid back southern culture. Good food at moderate prices, quality company and comforting original rustic design make PARISH a destination.

The Parish market should be the first place you go for any catering need. Whether you have a small office looking for box lunches or an off site dinner for forty, we would love to exceed your every expectation.

Should you want to bring your friends or business to Parish instead of us coming to you - our upstairs dining room is available for lunch and dinner parties any day of the week.

Let us cater your next event.
